Burglar Given $1 To Sin No More

A confused young burglar received a stern lecture on the evil of stealing early today and left the scene $1 to the good.

Miss Georgia Tinker, police reported, was awakened about 4 a.m. in her basement apartment at 325 Franklin street N.E., by a young man making his way out of a window. He had a bag of coins totalling $2.97 and a butcher knife.

Answering Miss Tinker's question of why he was taking the money, the intruder replied: "I can't get a job."

Miss Tinker, a Central Intelligence Agency employe, told the youth of her sick aunt who also needed money.

The would-be robber's conscience apparently got the best of him. He threw the knife and money back into the apartment. Miss Tinker gave him a dollar, and he left.

Police broadcast a lookout for a colored man, about 21, 5 feet 5 inches, wearing a white T-shirt and khaki trousers.
